Why Jackson County Needs A County Agent.

By C. E. Allred

Jackson county farmers are doing business with a capital of $6,000,000. They are farming 192,640 acres of land. There are 2,529 farmers, and the entire population lives on farms or dependent on the farmers for its support. Each year there is produced in the county crops worth $1,500,000, and the live stock and its products are worth $1,500,000.

There are planted every in the county 5,000 acres of wheat, yielding an average of seven bushels per acre. This is only a little over one-half the average for all the other counties in the state, and some farmers have raised six times as much.

On the average farm four pigs per litter are raised to weaning; on the well managed farms eight are raised. The only difference is a little better selection and care.

One-third of the cows in the county are kept at a loss; another third produce products which are worth just barely as much as the feed; so that of all the cows kept only one-third are really paying a profit.

These are a few of the many unprofitable farm practices that make a heavy cut in the profits of our farms. Is not this farm business too large and too important to be so neglected? Remember that the prosperity of our people in the future will depend entirely upon our agriculture.

We surely should have one of these "agents of prosperity" to help us in our work. He can show us how to stop hog cholera, test our cows for tuberculosis, disinfect our grains for smut, get improved kinds of seed, poik better live stock, test our soils for acidity, compound a spray mixture, market our surplus crops, develop a system of simple farm accounts, build a septic tank for disposal of house sewage and numerous other problems that are constantly arising in connection with our diversified agriculture. He is the resident representative of the Agricultural College, the State Department of Agriculture, and the United States Department of Agriculture. He is located on the ground where he can be of most use to us. The United States Government has spent hundreds of millions of dollars in studying agriculture. This information is available to our farmers thru a County Agent.

We can secure this assistance for less than one cent for each five acre field. And he will be worth thousands of dollars to our agriculture every year. Moreover, the best part of it is that his value becomes greater the longer we keep him.

Now, Jackson county is paying her share of the taxes to provide the Government and State appropriations for this work, and this is the only way she can get her share of the benefits. Nearly every county in the country will have one or more of these agents soon. Some counties in Tennessee have already as many as three.

Let's get the good work started again in Jackson county, or we will be left far behind.

The County Court will vote on it at its meeting next Monday. I suggest that the farmers talk it over with their Justice-of-the-Peace and see that it is carried. It is a matter of too much importance to be rejected.

Shields or Rye, Which?

Anent the situation in Jackson county with regard to the selection of a Democratic nominee for United States Senator, it has been observed that a lack of interest prevailed much out of all proportion to the importance of such selection. This condition prevails because of the fact that the public mind being so completely engrossed in the problems growing out of war conditions. It might with propriety be suggested, that, one of the first and most important duties of a people in the midst of war, is to prepare for the perpetuity and succession of their political and governmental institutions.

Senator Shields is familiar with prevailing conditions to an extent which a newcomer could not boast of even after several months in office. That a comparison between the relative abilities of the Senator and the Governor, could result in anything favorable to the Governor, can scarcely be entertained by the well informed.

The Senator is in office, and the Governor wants his place. To replace the Senator, the Governor is willing, and apparently determined to embroil the people of Tennessee in a political controversy, which, at the bottom is only the personal ambition of the two men, so far as the Governor is concerned, but, from the standpoint of the people, the real issue is, shall the people replace a man of undoubted loyalty, one, familiar with prevailing administration programs, and put into his place a man, who at least must spend many months to inform himself, and, that at a time, when the nation is in dire peril.

It can hardly be believed that the people of Tennessee will commit a blunder of this kind, and, that, a careful survey of the situation by the Governor and his advisers, will show him the folly of contesting the matter further.

Soldier Boys Visit Gainesboro.

Capt. John N. Johnson Jr. and a squad of soldiers who are taking military and mechanical training at the T. P. I. of Cookeville, came to Gainesboro Thursday, in three large army trucks. They were here for only an hour or so. The huge trucks were given close inspection by the citizens and boys of the town. James Anderson, chief instructor, was with the boys giving them the benefit of all the mechanical skill he possessed. They carried back two old "use to be" cars from here. These old cars will be put in first class shape by these boys for the experience. Will Dixon of this county was one of the boys, and he seems to be highly pleased with the service.

A Child's Savings May Shorten The War

The war is costing the combined allies more than $30,000,000 an hour. The daily fate of this huge sum is simple waste. A shortening of the war by days or even hours would mean the redemption of colossal waste.

We must bend every financial effort towards shortening the war. Every small amount invested by a child in Thrift Stamps tends towards this end. The influence of every Thrift Stamp purchased is a little momentum toward earlier victory.

Thus a child's savings may be instrumental in definitely shortening this war and in saving many times its own value in money, to say nothing of conserving human life.

Encourage your child to invest in 4% interest-bearing Thrift Stamps instead of merely hoarding his pennies in a tin bank.

Thrift Stamps cost 25 cents each and may be bought at the postoffice, from your mail carrier and at most stores.
